The Road to Adjustment

A new four-part CBC-TV series on the dilemma faced by present-day Canadian farmers

EARLE HOOKER is a good farmer, hardworking and intelligent. But his farm, which has been in the Hooker family for generations, is not an efficient economic unit. It is too small, it is under-capitalized. Many farmers, good farmers, are in the same position as Mr. Hooker. They continue to operate mainly off their depreciation. When the barn needs $500 in reconstruction work, they patch it for $50.

Many such farmers are fully aware of the deficiencies of their farms. They also know the hard fact that whereas 20 years ago a family farm could operate efficiently on a capital of $15,000, today good farming practice may require capitalization of up to $100,000. Few small farmers of middle age and over are willing to, even if they could, borrow the money necessary to introduce modern farming techniques. Nor are such farmers, men who have been their own bosses for 40 years, willing to throw in their holdings and move to town—even if they could get jobs.

So Earle Hooker and many farmers like him continue to operate their farms, often fully aware they are bad businessmen, fully aware they are accepting a standard of living materially below their urban fellows. They do so either because they know no other life, or because they want no other life.

It is easy to wax sentimental over the virtues of the simple life—particularly easy from the comfortable boredom of a suburban villa. It is equally easy to condemn rural life as back-breaking stupidity—particularly easy after some hard digging, in a suburban garden. But men like Earle Hooker are neither more virtuous nor more stupid than the city dweller. They simply like doing what they do, and there is nothing particularly virtuous or stupid in doing what you like to do.

This week a new Wednesday series of four farming programs called The Road to Adjustment starts on CBC-TV. (It replaces Explorations temporarily.) The first program, The Old Road, concerns farmers like Earle Hooker who, judged purely in economic terms, have not adjusted to the tremendous changes in Canadian farming since the war.

"This is the largest single group of Canadian farmers," says Keith Russell, who is researching and organizing the programs. "In some cases the lack of adjustment is due to lack of capital, available land, or available market. In other cases it may be due to lack of incentive, lack of initiative, or even the inability to recognize change and do something about it. In many cases, like that of Earle Hooker, the farm family places such a high value on the aesthetic value of farm life they are willing to forego the material rewards that might come from changing the operation."

In the first program, viewers will see, on film, Mr. Hooker's farm at Ormstown, P.Q. Then a team of studio guests, including a sociologist, an economist, and a farm leader will discuss the conditions which placed this farmer in his situation, and what might be done to make that position an easier one.

The causes for the plight of the small farmer are many. "Since World War 2 tremendous advances in production technology have made possible almost limitless agricultural production. This rapid production expansion in many parts of the world, combined with protective tariffs and quotas and the vagaries of foreign exchange rates, has placed Canadian farmers in a position where their production of most major commodities is greater

"Talent Caravan" opens the gate to an exciting
new singer from the west—

Seeing her name among the credits for "Frolic '60" was fun for Dorothy—even if it was spelled incorrectly. With Dorothy is producer Ernie Mutimer, a former CBC announcer at Edmonton.

Dorothy Harpell — "ARTIST AND MODEL"

TWO Edmontonians—conductor-arranger Bob McMullin and vocalist Dorothy Harpell—are our cover subjects this week. Bob, of course, now lives in Winnipeg, and his programs are heard regularly on the CBC networks. Dorothy still lives in Edmonton, and she is now featured on her own program—Artist and Model—Wednesday afternoons on radio.

The picture on the cover, and those on this page, were taken last New Year's Eve, when Dorothy (who had been married just three days earlier) was in Winnipeg rehearsing for Frolic '60, an eastern network New Year's Eve program from CBWT.

Frolic '60 was Dorothy's second network television program. She first appeared on CBC-TV on Talent Caravan when it originated from Edmonton last May 29. Dorothy was a member of a group called "The Shamrocks," and program planners at CBC Winnipeg were particularly impressed by Dorothy's appearance and performance in the group. She was asked to supply an audition tape, which was promptly supplied by radio station CFRN in Edmonton, and Winnipeg producers were again so impressed that they invited Dorothy to sing on shows from Winnipeg during the Christmas-New Year holiday.

The timing was hardly ideal, for Dorothy had to be in Winnipeg just 24 hours after her wedding. But in true showbusiness tradition, she accepted the offer and came to Winnipeg to take part in the New Year's Eve TV program and to give a 15-minute solo recital on the CBC's western radio network.

Dorothy is well known in Edmonton, where she has taken part in many musical stage productions, both light and serious. Her new radio series, Artist and Model, will make her familiar to a larger audience in the prairie provinces.

Artist and Model will feature Dorothy and organist Harry Boone in light standards and selections from musical comedies.

The program title? Dorothy is not only an up-and-coming artist in her own right, but also a busy fashion model.

A native of the Maritimes, Dorothy came to the west five years ago. She was "Miss Alberta" in 1956, and won the "Most Talented" award in the Miss Canada Contest of the same year.

How "The Archers" Came to Canada

Each year the BBC Transcription Service records more than a thousand different programs, which are offered for use by local broadcasting stations in more than 70 different countries. In a recent article, Malcolm Frost, head of the BBC Transcription Service, explained how he was—very willingly—"talked into" adding The Archers to the transcription output by the enthusiasm of Eugene Hallman of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation at lunch in Toronto in the summer of 1958.

Mr. Frost had felt some fears that the emphasis on British agriculture and the earthy accents of such characters as old Walter Gabriel and Ned Larkin might lessen the appeal of The Archers for audiences overseas. In addition, topical references might date a program which could not be heard until some weeks later than its broadcast in Britain.

But on his return from Canada he set about finding out whether there was sufficient demand from broadcasting organizations in other parts of the world to justify transcription production costs running into tens of thousands of pounds a year. Sample episodes of The Archers were distributed on tape by air to likely customers; there were long discussions with scriptwriters Edward J. Mason and Geoffrey Webb on the question of producing a number of programs to introduce The Archers to listeners overseas. Arrangements were made to cut the normal fifteen-minute program to twelve and a half minutes to suit overseas stations, and this shortening enabled producer Tony Shryane to cut out topical and other references unsuitable for overseas.

Finally, the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, the New Zealand Broadcasting Service, and a large group of broadcasting stations in Australia, Hong Kong, Jamaica, Kenya, and Tanganyika, agreed to carry The Archers and share in the cost.

The Archers programs are recorded in Birmingham about two weeks before the date of broadcast to listeners in Britain. As soon as the domestic version is on tape, the producer and his staff settle down to produce the overseas edition. Several copies are made on tape, one of which is immediately transferred to disc, from which long-play records are rapidly manufactured. Another copy is sent by air to Canada so that each episode of The Archers can be broadcast from coast to coast on the vast Trans-Canada network of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation on the same day as it is heard by listeners in Britain. A second copy of the tape is despatched immediately across the Pacific to New Zealand by Canadian Pacific Airlines, and on arrival in Wellington is subjected to a massive tape-copying operation, which makes quick and widespread transmission possible. In the meantime, discs are shipped to Australia and elsewhere.

Thus the program which in Britain has done so much to entertain and help farmers and give the town dweller a better understanding of country life, is now heard in the far corners of the world.—BBC London Letter.

Take One Sleepy Announcer . . .

. . . and a cosmopolitan pianist, add an on-air audience of women and a girl vocalist, and you've got CBWT's "Ladies First." Here are the stories of its stars—

FROM La Paz (Bolivia), where he started his broadcasting career as a boy, to Le Pas (Manitoba), where he was a Trappers' Festival star last year, Jose Poneira has always been a leading light in popular music circles.

Jose, who now lives in Winnipeg, and announcer Ken Dunstan are co-hosts on Ladies First, CBWT's Wednesday afternoon audience-participation show for women. Ken was well known to Alberta listeners as the morning announcer in Grande Prairie, then Edmonton, before he came to Winnipeg.

Jose plays the piano and sings, and Ken and Jose both talk with the ladies, who are on camera during the program. On February 17 the program began featuring weekly guest vocalists.

"This is just an unpretentious half-hour of living-room entertainment," says Jose. "There's nothing sophisticated about it."

"Everywhere I go," he explains, "people ask me to play the piano, and I just think of each Ladies First program as another such occasion."

Unpretentious though Ladies First may be, Jose considers it the most difficult job he has ever done. This may sound strange coming from someone who has worked in radio, television, and night clubs in all parts of North and South America and in Europe. Jose explains: "It's the first time I've had to work with my audience. In the past all I've had to do was play to it."

Ken and Jose find their audiences willing to co-operate, excited about the idea of being on TV, and sometimes even a little frightened at the prospect. It is their job to get them relaxed before on-air time. This, they find, is not so difficult, but unpredictable happenings can sometimes destroy all their efforts. On one occasion the huge ceiling lights began to come loose and almost fell on a group of ladies while they were being interviewed on the air. Seasoned performers expect this sort of thing, but it can be unnerving, to say the least, to others.

Jose was born in Germany, brought up in South America (Bolivia, Argentina) and Spain, and educated in South America, Europe and the U.S. He began his piano studies in South America, went to the Conservatory in Zurich, Switzerland, for further training, then to New York for private studies in piano, voice, and arranging. Jose's training, like that of most good popular musicians, was almost entirely in the classics. Although he now refuses to play the classics in public, Bach's Well-Tempered Clavichord is still his musical Bible, and he plays part of it every day. The influence of his training occasionally comes through, however, even in his performances of popular music. On a recent CBC Variety Hour, for example, he played his own setting of All the Things You Are in the styles of Bach and Mozart. (Jose is co-host with Georges LaFleche on the Variety Hour alternate Monday afternoons on CBC radio).

Jose says he doesn't choose any special type of music for his all-women audience on Ladies First. He just plays what he likes best and what he thinks he plays best, which is what he has always done—in radio, clubs and television, in South America and the U.S., and on his recordings (on the Rainbow label).

While he was in the States, Jose toured the night club circuit from coast to coast, wrote and recorded commercial jingles for South American use, and appeared as a regular on The Robert Q. Lewis Show from New York. He came to Winnipeg in 1957 to fill a night club engagement. He is still filling it.

Jose has lived in the midst of one civil war (in Spain), and two revolutions (in Bolivia), and during World War II he served in the Today — "Much More Than Bananas." Illustrates the struggle of the 10 million people inhabiting the five republics of Central America to shake loose from the past and adopt 20th century way of life. How they are succeeding with the co-operation of various UN agencies has been captured on film by UN reporter-narrator Jose Santos Quijano. In Guatemala, we see how a pilot health project has provided thousands of Indian children with a glass of milk a day. In Costa Rica, we see the results of a fight to escape economic dependence on one product, the establishment of a flourishing dairy co-operative and the pioneering work of the Inter-American Institute for Agricultural Sciences where modern techniques are being applied to improve every useful tropical crop. In El Salvador, we see the country's successful efforts to keep its people from deserting their native villages because of lack of work.

Documentary '60

Second of two programs on "Poisons, Pests and People." Prominent conservationists, agricultural experts, chemists and health authorities will give their views on various aspects of the increased use of pesticides in homes, fields and forests.

Music Makers

Another program in the Telephone Hour series. Polly Bergen is hostess and singing star. Guests will include singer John Raitt, 15-year-old concert pianist Lorin Hollander, the Dukes of Dixieland, and The Bob Hamilton Dance Trio (Kathryn Damon, Bob Hamilton and Gloria Stevens). Donald Voorhees conducts the Telephone Hour Orchestra.

Walt Disney Presents

This week — "Geronimo's Revenge." John Slaughter (Tom Tryon) and Geronimo (Pat Hogan) begin a deadly personal feud. Against orders of Apache chief Natchez (Jay Silverheels), young brave Geronimo raids the Slaughter ranch three times, stealing horses and slaughtering cattle. Slaughter intends to kill Geronimo in single combat but Natchez halts the fight. Later, Geronimo lures Slaughter and his cowhands away from the ranch, and then attacks it, hoping to kill John's wife and children before he returns.

ED SULLIVAN CLOWNS with singers Bobby Darrin and Connie Francis, who will appear on his show this Sunday (Feb. 28) on the CBC-TV network.

Father Knows Best

This week — "Jim's Big Surprise." Jim Anderson announces that he has a big surprise for his family and is conscious of everybody's let-down when he tells them the chamber of commerce and PTA have named him "ideal father of the year." Jim tries to explain why the Andersons don't have some of the luxuries their neighbors have. Ashamed, the other Andersons give Jim a "surprise dinner" at home.

Joan Fairfax Show

Singer Joan Fairfax, with the Alan Lund Dancers and orchestra conducted by Samuel Hersenhoren. Actor-singer Don Francks is Joan's guest tonight.

G.M. Presents

"Madge is for Maybe," an original teleplay by Ronald Bailey. A drama about a shy, backward 30-year-old girl who tries to become part of the outside world rather than let everything revolve around her family. Madge Thomson, living with her family on a remote backwoods farm in Haliburton, has had little opportunity during her 30 odd years to meet many men her own age—that is, men other than her brothers, Mike and Bud, and the local handyman and trapper, Theo, with whom she grew up. When Jim Mercer, a smart young advertising man turns up at the summer resort across the lake and starts taking Madge out, her life suddenly becomes exciting and far too complicated. She is torn between her deep, abiding love for her family and the farm, a childish fear of the unknown, and a purposeful desire to make something more of her life. Another brother, Billy, a strange backward youngster, adds suddenly to these complications, making them press in on her with agonizing complications. However, with staunch support and understanding of her family, she manages to break the shyness and the habit of indecision.

Let's Look

Let's look at the waterfront again. On today's show, viewers are taken on a second trip to the waterfront, following a ship into harbour and watching proceedings as the passengers disembark and the cargo is unloaded.

Science All Around Us

Today's program is all about the moon, its surface, size, and distance from the earth. Viewers discover why the moon "changes shape" and how it controls the ocean tides.

Youth '60

With host Tommy Common, Penny Williams and Dennis Crothall. The career for this week is printing. Talking about some of the 70 odd careers in the printing industry will be George Harper, general supervisor of printing at MacLean-Hunter Publishing Co. One of the first hand typesetters will be in the studio along with one of the latest photographic typesetters. John Eccleston (18) an apprentice compositor at the University of Toronto, will talk about his apprenticeship and how young people can make a career in the printing industry. For girls, there will be a segment on dressmaking with Mrs. Maria Di Genova, instructor in tailoring and dressmaking at Central Technical School, Toronto. She will show that certain styles suit certain figures. She suggests how one can be up to date in fashion and adapt present clothes to the latest styles without being too extraordinary. Mrs. Di Genova will bring to the studio a series of small figures representing different figure types. She will explain some basic steps in dressmaking, such as adjusting hemlines, taking in seams, etc.

Madame Benoit is going to show viewers her recipe for easily prepared muffins.

ON THE MAP—Dr. Paul Fox of the University of Toronto will give his weekly report on topics in the news.

Mantovani

Mantovani plays music for everyone. Guests will be Adele Leigh, The Darmora Ballet and The Band of Her Majesty's Welsh Guards.

CBWT—Mary Liz Show

Today, we visit the Manitoba Division of the Canadian Red Cross to see some of the services supported by contributors to the annual campaign for funds. Metropolitan Block Plan co-chairman Mrs. Fernand Viner and Mrs. J. E. Wilson describe the work of residential canvassers for the Red Cross. Mrs. C. E. Crawford, in the third of her current series, has suggestions for both the beginner and the experienced seamstress in working magic to transform materials ready for the rag-bag to renewed and useful service. Alice Poyser makes some selections to alert us to good reading from the publishers' spring lists.

Susie

Today—"A Man Named Smith." Susie and her boss try to locate a young novelist who is actually sitting in their reception office under an alias. A young unknown female singer is sitting with him and although Susie's boss is too upset to see the two, she "discovers" them for the Sands Agency.

Friendly Giant

Friendly and Jerome and Rusty talk about boats and sailing, and read a book entitled "Mouse at Sea."

Maggie Muggins

Reuben and Violet hire out their distinctive tails, and Fitzgerald gets into the act by tying ostrich feathers to his tail. This gets him into difficulty, and Henrietta Hen is commissioned to bring him down to earth again.

The Black Hawks picked up the 24-year-old rookie from the Montreal Canadiens organization when the Habs failed to place him among their 18 protected players. The price was the minimum $20,000.

So far he's been the year's biggest bargain and outstanding rookie. His 13 goals and 24 assists earned him 57 points in the mid-season balloting for the rookie-of-the-year award, the Calder Trophy. Along with Murray Balfour and high-scoring Bobby Hull he forms the Black Hawks' top line and potentially one of their all-time greatest.

Lady Bracknell raises objections when it comes to light that Jack, as a baby had been found in a handbag in Victoria station, left there by an absent-minded governess, and has no information as to who his parents are. To add to the farcical plot, Jack and his cousin Algernon both assume the name of a fictitious character called Ernest, but clear up their identities and appease the elderly female dragon Lady Bracknell, in time to wed two pretty girls.

Bill Hay was born in Saskatoon and played his first hockey around Regina. After an outstanding career with the junior Regina Pats he accepted an athletic scholarship at Colorado College, in Colorado Springs.

He graduated as a geological engineer and, turning his back on hockey, took a position with an oil company in Calgary. Hay's hockey ability hadn't escaped the Montreal organization and they convinced him to sign a pro contract in the fall of 1958.

The Canadiens loaned him to the Calgary Stampede, a Black Hawk affiliate in the Western Hockey League. He started slowly, but finished strongly, scoring 24 goals and 30 assists in 53 games.

The Hawks were sold on young Hay and the Canadiens were unable to protect him so he became Chicago property. Hay, who stands 6 feet three inches and weighs 200 lbs., is not an over-aggressive player, but he's big enough to dissuade the rugged veterans who like to make life rough for rookies.

Hay is married and makes his summer home in Calgary.—Dennis O'Neill.

both the historical background and current significance of the event.

Part Two—First of a new series of 20-minute telecasts featuring famous historic sites in different parts of Canada. Today—Port Royal Habitation. Using the Habitation as the setting for the telecast, costumed citizens of nearby Annapolis will re-enact the life of the old colony. Viewers will see Marc Lescarbot, the historian of the early colony. They will see the courtyard and the various buildings grouped around it—the kitchen and bakery, the blacksmith shop, the living quarters and the trading room where the Indians exchanged their furs for beads and blankets.

Our Miss Brooks

Today—"A Dry Scalp is Better Than None." Angela, hypochondriac, tells Miss Brooks that she (Angela) has only a month to live, in order to get attention. Miss Brooks and other friends of Angela at Madison High decide to give a Christmas ahead of time to cheer Angela up.

R.C.M.P.

This week—"The Marked Man." The management of a mill calls in Corporal Gagnier to prevent the murder of Spruce Falls Paper Mill millwright Ken McCready. Cast: Gilles Pelletier as Gagnier; James Doohan as McCready; Leslie Yeo as Curtis Green; and Ed McNamara as Bill Harvey.

Perry Como

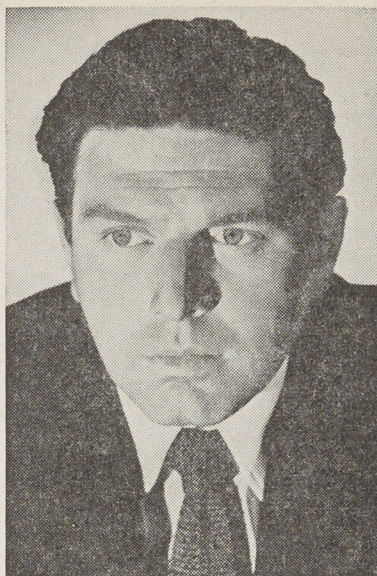

Perry's special guests this week will be four top Broadway performers: Robert Morse (Take Me Along); Theodore Bikel (The Sound of Music); Carol Lawrence (Saratoga); and Nancy Walker (The Girls Against the Boys).

The Unforeseen

"The Proposal." The action takes place in Paris, Monte Carlo and a small town in Canada. In this suspense drama a brother intervenes in a romance that comes late in life to his rather plain sister, Harriet, who is bewitched by the charms of a middle-aged Frenchman. Cast includes Alexander Webster, George Sperdakos and Jacob Reinglas.

The Old Road

First in a new series of programs titled "The Road to Adjustment." Today—"The Old Road," concerns farmers who, judged purely in economic terms, have not adjusted to the tremendous changes in Canadian farming since the war. (See story page 2).

THEODORE BIKEL

is among the stars of current Broadway hits who will be featured on the Perry Como Show this Wednesday. (Bikel is in "The Sound of Music"). Also on the program — Robert Morse ("Take Me Along"), Carol Lawrence ("Saratoga"), and Nancy Walker ("The Girls Against the Boys").

ROAD TO ADJUSTMENT

than world and domestic market demands.

These factors have resulted in low prices for farm produce. Low prices, in turn, linked with growing production costs, have narrowed the profit margin for agricultural products to the point where it is impossible for the small volume producer to maintain his standard of living. The situation is aggravated by the fact that the business of farming and farm living requires much greater amounts of cash than it did 15 years ago.

How can the farmer, who was the desire and capital resources to do so, adjust to the new situation? That is the concern of a later program in the series (the third, entitled The Thru' Way.)

"The group of farmers who have successfully adjusted is small but increasing," said Keith Russell. "They run their farms more as a business than a way of life, and make it pay off. In this program we will look at a successful farmer and seek out the personal characteristics and details of his farm operation which have made the adjustment possible. We take the farm of John Murta, Graysville, Man."

At any one time, about 10 per cent of Canadian farmers are supplementing their income by part-time or full-time work off the farm. Second program in the series—The Detour—studies these men.

"We look at the farm of Allar Beare, Bethany, Ont., for this example," said Russell. "Again, a team of studio guests will discuss the part-time farmer: whether his adjustment is a good one for himself and his family, his community, the Canadian labour force, and the Canadian agricultural industry. If it is a good adjustment, what should be done to help part-time farmers, and who should do it?"

Last program in the series—The Seventh Wave—moves from agriculture to fishing, and particularly the Atlantic fishing industry. Here the problem is two-fold. First, until recently the individual fisherman was producer-processor, catching his fish then drying, salting or smoking it himself. The recent demand for fresh fish, fish sticks, and ready-to-cook packaging has put processing and marketing into the hands of a few big plants with high capitalization, and the fisherman must now make a living solely by producing. This, in turn, has forced greater investment in bigger boats, electronic gear, and so on, all of which requires a bigger outlay of money or greater credit.

Secondly, the Canadian fishing industry faces great competition from foreign countries who fish in Atlantic waters and sell in the U.S. market. Most foreign fleets are heavily subsidized by their governments.

"In this last program we show how these factors affect Port Bickerton, N.S., and how one group of fishermen has gone a long way to solving its problems," said Keith Russell.

Host of The Road to Adjustment is Ken Homer of Woodstock, N.B., formerly of CBC Halifax. Murray Creed will produce the series.

Chez Helene

French lessons for pre-schoolers presented by Helene Baillargeon and her guests. From Montreal.

Nursery School Time

Miss Madeleine and Dick make paper hats. They dramatize the song There was A Princess Long Ago.

Open House

THIS IS THE LAW—In his third talk, Professor Morton will discuss how the law works in buying property—and what your lawyer does to protect your interests.

DON'T THROW BRICKS AT THE BUILDERS—Why are houses built so close together? Why aren't there more cupboard spaces in rooms? Why aren't lights over the kitchen sinks standard fixtures? These are some of the questions we'll ask a textiles expert, offers more advice for consumers this Thursday afternoon on "Open House." Mrs. Humphries is also featured regularly on CBC radio's Matinee Quiz (Tuesday afternoons on "Trans-Canada Matinee").

building contractor, Bill Small, this afternoon.

FACTS AND FIGURES — What's new in overshoes—apart from spiky heels which make holes so quickly? Textile research chemist, Mary Humphries reports today on rubber overshoes.

Boyd Q.C.

This week—"The Shropshire Lad." A man and his girl friend are jointly indicted for receiving stolen goods. Michael Denison as Richard Boyd defends the man and the girl (who is a movie star).

CBWT—Mary Liz Show

"The Calendar is the Catechism of the Jew" is the theme of Rabbi N. J. Freedman's contribution to the religious denominational series currently in progress. Today, Rabbi Freedman describes some of the feasts and festivals of the Jewish calendar, and shows traditional symbols used in Jewish homes and in the synagogue. Miss Frances McKay of the Department of Agriculture presents her regular weekly market report, and we look in on the work of the Y.M.C.A. from the point of view of one of the many women associated with an active branch of the "Y."

The Millionaire

This week—"Nancy Pearson." After a long honeymoon, Johnny Pearson leaves his bride and goes to Venezuela to strike it rich. He bombards her with sentimental greetings including cheques drawn on "The Bank of Johnny's Love." When Michael Anthony appears with a $1,000,000 cheque Mrs. Pearson adds it to her collection of phony cheques.

This Living World

The winter habits of skunks, bears and various types of birds provide today's subject and some new facts about them are discovered.

Roy Rogers

This week—"Sheriff Missing." Roy and Dale Evans uncover a plot by two renegades who want to establish legalized gambling in Mineral City. Pat Brady "spills the beans" to help provide a trail for Roy to follow when the badmen kidnap Brady and the sheriff's wife. Roy disguises himself as a badman to rescue them.

The Deputy

This week — "Lady With a Mission." Agatha Stone, a suffrage and women's rights leader, calls a meeting at Silver City during a tour of the west. A local liquor distributor and two hired gunmen try to stop Agatha's crusade but the woman's courage wins over the townspeople, especially when she matches the liquor man drink for drink. Clay McCord steps in when Agatha is kidnapped.

Talent Caravan

George Murray and Ricky Hyslop and his orchestra present amateur and semi-professional talent from Quebec City. Contestants will include: Carol Donavan who will sing Blue Skies, jazz musicians The Greeden Trio, singer Dennis Walsh, dancers Roland Halle and sister, and Miss Paule Lemieux who will sing Hymn a l'Amour.

Close-Up

This week — Bernard Braden continues his interview with former Hollywood boy-wonder Orson Welles. This interview was filmed in Paris, where Welles is working on a new film.

A musician cannot hope to get far on brains or mere ability alone. He needs a quality of devotion in order to project the beauty of the music to others. It's an illusive quality, but one which is instantly recognizable even in quite young people. This spark, as we might call it, cannot be pre-fabricated or transplanted, but it can be recognized and fanned into flame.—Concert pianist Denis Matthews, on BBC.

Bolivian Army, attached to the U.S. military mission there. He is now enjoying his quieter existence in Winnipeg, where he has bought a house for himself, his American wife (whose parents come from Winnipeg), his two cats and one dog.

Jose is anxious to correct the impression that he and Ken Dunstan don't get along well. They kid each other regularly on Ladies First—Jose about Ken's "tin ear," Ken about Jose's fondness for the music of Cole Porter. Actually, off camera, they are the best of friends.

Ken, who came to Winnipeg from CBC's Edmonton studios last May, was born in Regina and brought up in Toronto, where he started his CBC career—as an office boy—16 years ago. He says his hobby is "trying to catch up on my sleep," and this is easy to understand: Ken's first announcing job, at CFBP (Grande Prairie, Alberta), was as early morning host. Five years after starting this, he moved to CBC in Edmonton — as early morning announcer. And five years after that he was transferred to Winnipeg—as (you guessed it!) Ken is married and is the father of three children.

HAROLD CRITTENDEN, general-manager of CKCK-TV, Regina, smokes the traditional pipe of peace in the presence of Sioux Chief Mighty Slayer of Many Deer, following a ceremony in which Mr. Crittenden was named Chief Mighty Voice and Big Eye. CKCK-TV women's editor, Joy Perkins, was named Princess Give Much Joy. The ceremony was performed recently by members of the Fort Qu'Appelle Rotary Club in recognition of CKCK-TV's work with community organizations.

CBWT—Music-Hall

Michelle Tisseyer's guests this week are jazz pianist Bernard Peiffer; tenor Richard Verreau; La Chanson Canadienne with Pierre Paquette, Lise Roy, Jacques Thierry and Alan Mills; Spanish guitarist Fernando Sirvent and his wife, dancer Raquel Tena; and tight-rope artist Tonito. Choreography is by Brian MacDonald. (CBC Montreal film).

Junior Magazine

Doug Maxwell introduces a film about the life of Joel Chandler Harris, author of the Uncle Remus stories. Chandler Harris (1848-1908) grew up in the south in the time of the American Civil War. He managed to get a little schooling and joined a newspaper, "The Countryman," probably the only newspaper to have been published on a plantation, as a typesetter. While there he learned about Negro folk-lore and adapted the legends into humorous stories with authentic approximations of the Negro dialect. His best known characters were Uncle Remus, Brer Rabbit, Brer Fox and The Tar Baby. A story about The Tar Baby will be shown today as a cartoon. Also featured today will be a cartoon "Donald Duck Gets Drafted."

Sports—Mobile

Men's Senior Inter-Provincial Basketball between Manitoba and Saskatchewan champions. Program will originate from the University of Manitoba Fieldhouse, commentary by Bob Moir and Jack Wells.

Tired Wrestler

• I plead with you, please change wrestling back to Saturday night. I'm so tired on Tuesday morning that I can't see. The boss he say, "What make you so tired after Monday?" I say, "I wrestle all night."—J. S., R. R. 10, Winnipeg.

All-Canadian

• I don't like those hour-long musicals the U.S. is giving us this year. Music '60 is far better. I hope we hear more of George Murray singing. The wee bit of Scotch and the touch o' Irish in his ballads give it that "it," you know. It makes me feel great when readers across the line praise our TV and radio. I like Father Knows Best, Disneyland, Ernie Ford, etc., but Canucks take notice: Canada and its people have a quality all their own.—J. Chambers, Winnipeg.

Idle Rumour

• I hope it is no more than an idle rumour that the CBC is planning to abolish religious broadcasts, especially such a one as Family Worship, which takes only a measly five minutes. Surely from the hours devoted jazz, news and sports five minutes can be spared for "higher thoughts." One hopes it cannot be that religion must be abolished because it has become an offence to the vast majority of listeners. It is disquieting to think of the CBC competing on the same footing with the crassest commercial stations for the debased audience they have cultivated. It is, of course, easier to debase than to elevate, otherwise "payola" could have as easily spent the money on promoting the best in music as the worst. Please don't "axe" Family Worship. We've listened to it faithfully every day for years.—Miss M. E. J., Brandon.

This is the first we've heard of this rumour which is, of course, completely without foundation. Miss M. E. J. errs in thinking that our religious broadcasts are "an offence to the vast majority of listeners." "Family Worship" and "Morning Devotions" are, in fact, among our most popular programs.

Anti-Tempo

• I used to listen to Rawhide, but now that he is mixed up with Tempo. I seldom get him or any of the rest of the worthwhile parts of Tempo. I tune in and along comes a tuneless noise which fair turns my insides, so I turn it off and forget to put it back on again. Do the people who put on these records have to listen to them or are they in a soundproof box? Why do you put on such rubbish when there is so much good music? You will say that some people like it. A lot of people like whiskey, but you don't supply it free.—F. V. Sargent, Central Butte, Sask.

• I much prefer the simple, dignified form of air announcement to the "humorous" or musical type.

These give me the feeling that our CBC is falling from its high, dignified standards to something very cheap and artificial. A good program speaks for itself, and the great majority of CBC programs are of course, good! However, while I am writing I would like to express my complete dissatisfaction with what is presented under the name of music on Tempo. When I consider that you have at your disposal such refined, talented artists as Bernard Johnson and the fact that he is allotted only three 15-minute presentations a week I feel that it is time for a reappraisal of your music programming. Generally speaking, however, CBC still gives us the best available anywhere and I am most grateful for the many hours of listening pleasure which it contributes to my daily pattern of living.—Mrs. Gertrude Westaway, Calgary.

About "Manon" . . .

• Having heard a report of many letters being sent to you protesting the presentation of the opera Manon on Thursday evening, I thought I would send one in a different vein. I enjoyed the opera very much and would appreciate being able to see more of them. I miss The Concert Hour and would be happy to have it and other programs like it presented again.—Mrs. B.M., Moose Jaw, Sask.

• The televising of the French opera was in very bad taste. This so-called entertainment has just about topped everything. Why should one foreign language group monopolize one-half of the average viewer's TV time?—Mrs. R.B., Winnipeg.

• Thank you for Manon on TV Thursday evening!—Mrs. R.C.L., Winnipeg.

• Many thanks indeed for Manon, televised last Thursday. It was most enjoyable. During the morning coffee break I heard many expressions of satisfaction, among my associates that the CBC had given us something really worthwhile for over two hours on TV. My wife had precisely the same experience the next morning. Please continue to give those of us who enjoy good fare—and we are many—more such delightful treats.—D.N., Winnipeg.

• May I express most sincere appreciation for the exquisitely produced and performed Manon last evening. The photography was superb, the costumes gorgeous, and the singing and acting thoroughly delightful. I paid $8.00 overseas to see this charming opera. Thank you for giving us the opportunity to learn something of the wonderful work being done in Montreal by this fine group of performers. I am looking forward to the next work in March.—Miss L.W., Winnipeg.

• Your production of Manon was entirely enjoyable. Thank you also for the summary of the story in the "Times."—N. A. MacK., Westlock, Alta.

• As one who enjoyed the performance of Manon immensely I hasten to tell you so in order to counteract the protests you have had about it. Please keep up your standards and let us see and hear some of the really good music and drama.—Mrs. E.C., Ponoka, Alta.

• I was astonished to read in today's paper that some viewers objected to the fine production of Manon. We appreciated it very much and do hope that we'll see and hear more programs of this quality.—Mrs. S.K., Winnipeg.

• Please never let the so-called "majority" of TV viewers stop the showing of programs such as the opera Manon. I am not interested in all the westerns and simple comedy pictures shown, but realize that we have to take the good with the bad, so do not complain.—Mrs. M.L., Lethbridge, Alta.

• Please be advised that the opera Manon was simply awful.—H.C.O., Norwood.

• I cannot understand those phone calls complaining about Manon. The CBC presents a lot of popular and western music and many sports events, none of which we like, but we would not even consider phoning in to complain because we realize a lot of people enjoy those programs.—Mrs. H.M., Winnipeg.

• Do we, as western Canadians, have to suffer the indignity of such a program as carried by your station on Feb. 11. If we must have French opera, would it not be advisable to keep some where it belongs—in Quebec? This has been forwarded for publication.—J. D. Campbell, Winnipeg.

The preceding correspondence represents the ratio of pro and con letters received on this subject by press time. Regarding the second and last letters: "Manon" was not presented in French because it came from Montreal or because French is an official language of Canada, but because it was written in French! The same group seen in "Manon" presents Italian opera in Italian on the same CBC French Network series ("L'Heure du Concert").

MUSIC ON RADIO

by BOYD NEEL

ON MONDAY evening from Vancouver there is a performance of Haydn's Symphony No. 39. The old numbering of the Breitkopf edition is still being used because it is probably the best we shall have for many years. We have got to know the numbers so well by now that it would be confusing to change them. Alfred Einstein in his edition of the Köchel catalogue of Mozart's works caused a great deal of confusion by trying to change the numbers to which everybody had become so accustomed, and I am glad to see that people are sticking to the familiar numbers in Mozart's works as well.

The 39th Symphony of Haydn in G minor must have influenced to a great extent Mozart's work in the same key, No. 183 in the Köchel catalogue. The orchestration of both works is very similar and not at all usual for the period. In both symphonies four horns are used which, at the time, was extremely rare. Haydn also has two oboes to make up his wind complement. Mozart adds two bassoons, but neither composer uses the flutes. It is interesting that, at this period in his life, Haydn uses the flute only in one symphony, No. 41, and he obviously thought that the rather sweet tones of this instrument were not fitting to the sombre sound which permeates this very dramatic work. As to the four horns, this is the only time that Haydn used this number in a symphony in a minor key and it is also the last time he uses four horns at all; the only other symphonies where we find them are Nos. 13, 31 and 72 (72 was written before 39, but we stick to the old numbering). The first and last movements of this work are among the finest compositions of Haydn, but will be heard on Prairie Concert this Thursday night from Edmonton (7:30 p.m. on CBW, CBK, and CBX).

THOMAS RALSTON and ISOBEL MOORE
Violinist Pianist

the two middle movements hardly come up to the same level. If they had done so, this would have been one of Haydn's great masterpieces. As we have it, it is probably the best of his earlier symphonies.

I have had a letter from a reader asking me if I could write a little about the composer Goring Thomas. This was an English composer who died in 1892, and was originally intended for the Civil Service, only taking up music in his twenties. He studied under Sullivan and Prout and later with Max Bruch. Towards the end of the nineteenth century his name was extremely well known in musical circles, his operas becoming almost popular. The most famous of them was Esmeralda which, I think, Beecham used to give quite a lot in his old Covent Garden days. This is an opera which might well be looked at again because, as far as I can remember, it contains a lot of beautiful music, of which we occasionally still hear the aria O Vision Entrancing at concerts. The story is based on Victor Hugo's Notre Dame de Paris and the work exists in two versions—a French and an English. His other great operatic work was Nadeshda. Maybe the CBC will let us hear some of Thomas' music in the near future, as he certainly had his place in English music of the nineteenth century.

The Britten version of Purcell's Dido and Aeneas, to be heard on Wednesday night (see story page 27) is another instance of this composer's brilliance in reviving the music of his great English predecessor. Although many may not agree with Britten's ideas, they are always interesting and very often extremely stimulating. His version of The Beggar's Opera was probably his masterpiece in this line and shed a completely new light (probably the correct light) on this famous masterpiece. Britten's admiration for Purcell is unbounded and his enthusiasm for this music seems to increase as the years go by.

• • •

There is a view rather prevalent in England, perhaps in America, that an opera cannot be dramatic unless half a dozen people are slaughtered on the stage . . .—Sir Thomas Beecham in a BBC television interview.

SOVIET LITERATURE

Last of four talks on Soviet Literature by David Stewart, Department of English, University of Alberta. This week—"The Thaw . . . Mikhail Sholokhov." Mr. Stewart says, "In 1927 the editors of one of the most important Soviet literary journals received a huge, badly typed manuscript. Often there was no space between words or sentences. Hand-written corrections were scribbled everywhere in a tortured, illegible script. The spelling was, to speak charitably, eccentric . . . Thus began The Quiet Don, the novel which most critics believe is the finest work of fiction produced by a Soviet writer."

W-8:00 pm

RECITAL

With pianist Riquette Stara Sherman. Norm Lucas, producer. From Winnipeg.

French Suite No. 3 in B

Minor . . . J. S. Bach

The Business Of Beauty

JOHN BARRYMORE once complained that "the trouble with life is that there are so many beautiful women—and so little time." He said that over 30 years ago, and since then the "problem" has grown steadily worse. With all the cheap, easily-applied cosmetics on the market, nearly every woman can make even a small claim to loveliness, and statistics show that Canadian women are going mad about beauty. In the last three decades the beauty industry in Canada has increased over 10 times—a faster rate than in the United States, where the emphasis on youth is even greater than in this country.

Why this Canadian stampede for beauty? Are the results worth the sacrifices? Are some beauty products dangerous? Can you believe the claims of the advertisers? Trans-Canada Matinee intends to get to the root of the beauty business in an hour-long "spectacular" this Monday afternoon.

Producer Christina McDougall got the idea for the show when she read a newspaper account of a litigation between a Toronto hair-removal firm and a dissatisfied customer. Miss McDougall did a little investigating on her own, and found that there does not seem to be any government control of hair removal firms in Canada. She grew curious about the control of salons treating baldness and other beauty problems, and this prompted her to plan a grand-scale investigation of the whole beauty picture in Can-an explosion of art and literature and a ferment of ideas. But what sort of people were the Athenians? To understand a little about them, it is rewarding to glance at their class of society, at their treatment of slaves, at what the schools taught, and even at the kind of clothes worn.

W-9:30 pm K-10:30 pm X-10:30 pm

VANCOUVER CHAMBER ORCH.

Conducted by John Avison with piano soloist Duncan McNab.

Symphony No. 39 in G minor—Haydn

Sinfonietta Giocosa—Maurice Strakosky
W-10:00 pm K-9:00 pm X-9:00 pm

RECORD ALBUM

W-11:30 pm K-11:30 pm X-11:30 pm

ada. Writer-interviewer Gwen Grant did the field work, and the result is a frank look at the practices and traditions, both good and bad, in the beauty business. Miss Grant consulted cosmeticians, chemists, physicians, dermatologists, psychologists, officials from the firms of Elizabeth Arden, Helena Rubinstein, Yardley's, Slenderella, the Bruno School of Hair Design, and the Dermat Clinic of Hair Removal in Toronto and New York, and she talked to officials of the Food and Drug Directorate of the Department of National Health and Welfare in Ottawa to determine what control the government exercises over the manufacture and sale of cosmetics. She tape-recorded her interviews and chose the most informative and provocative of them for the show.

Is Royal Jelly strictly for the bees, or can it take 10 years off your face? Can vitamins and hormones be absorbed by the skin? What are the new placenta creams, and what can they do? What is a moisturizing cream? These are typical of the questions Miss Grant asked when she set out to investigate creams. She sifted fact from fancy about the relations between creams and allergies or skin cancer. She uncovered some interesting information about sun lotions, the true value of facial massage, and soap-and-water versus cold cream cleansing.

On her round of the beauty salons in Toronto, Gwen Grant was told of several husbands who drop in to discuss a new hair colouring job for their wives, and then send the wives around to have it done. Miss Grant went very thoroughly into the whole subject of hair colour and care. First she found out—from customers, beauticians and doctors—the psychological advantages of having hair styled, tinted and curled. What are the dangers of hair dyes, tints and sprays? What will various shampoos do for you? What control does the government exercise over the training of hairdressers? What are the latest research facts about permanents? Miss Grant got all the answers, and some of them may surprise you. Then she went on to investigate the problems and advantages of hair removal. Is waxing preferable to shaving? Is it painful? Is electrolysis inefficient? What are the dangers of X-ray treatment? Along with expert answers to these questions Miss Grant presents some interesting facts about high-frequency current, which can remove hair permanently without scars, and she looks for the truth about whether creams and tweezing stimulate hair growth.

Miss Grant also looked into every aspect of the current fad for slimming. First she consulted doctors for the facts about overweight and dieting dangers, and the causes of overweight, and she came up with the blunt statement that fat people can stop making excuses for themselves. Overeating is the thing that puts on those extra pounds, and dieting is the only thing that will take them off. Pills, she found, can help curb appetites, but no mechanical device can reduce weight, although it can take off inches.

She elicited some pretty frank opinions from operators of reducing salons and their customers. Some of their remarks will be discouraging for listeners who are looking for a magic formula for shedding bulges. But to counterbalance this Miss Grant offers news about a recently-introduced machine for permanently firming facial contours.

Many of the men and women she interviewed disagreed violently about the value and dangers of various beauty products and treatment, but from their discussions emerges an informative picture of what science can and cannot do to make a woman lovelier. Beauty may be only skin deep, but, as American humourist Kin Hubbard said, "it's a valuable asset, if you're poor and haven't any sense."

Manitoba — Tuneful Tales. This week—"Come To The Fair," and the song "A Gladsome Hymn of Praise." (Grades 3-4).

Saskatchewan — Let's Write a Story. Today—"Inside and Outside." One of the most interesting parts of story writing is the creation of characters who come to life as we write them into a tale. Our purpose today will be to interest children in creating a special story character they can use for a story sequence. (Grades 4-6).

Alberta — Music Makers, a program designed to provide a variety of music experience. Grades 4-6.

W-3:00 pm K-2:00 pm X-2:00 pm

TRANS-CANADA MATINEE

All About Ankles. A female adolescent with thick ankles has an insurmountable handicap and a permanent scapegoat. Failing geometry, snubs from boys, and rain the day of a picnic can all be blamed on thick ankles. So says Toronto journalist and broadcaster Joan Seager who subsequently discovered that the only cure for not-so-shapely legs is a happy marriage.

A Heaven Full of Mixed-Up Boys. Father DeBrienne is a 34-year-old Franciscan monk who works in Ottawa with young people. From the age of five, he has studied music and he has a great love of the classics. He also plays a guitar and sings rock-and-roll; in his genre, he has written a number of songs for the edification of his teen-age audience. In this interview with Ottawa broadcaster Peter Stursburg, Father DeBrienne explains how all this came about.

Underwater Exploration in Mexico. Off the island of Cozumel in the Gulf of Mexico, frogmen are looking for buried treasure. Not Spanish doubloons, necessarily, but remnants of the wrecks of 40 ships dating from the early centuries after Columbus discovered America. Irene Nicholson, Mexico City correspondent for The Times of London, has seen the divers bringing up some of these coral-encrusted remnants and she describes the expeditions in this Matinee report.

Daily features . . . News commentary by Anne Francis of Ottawa, music and songs by baritone Harry Mossfield of Toronto, and another reading by Jane Hillary from Erika Leuchtag's "With a King in the Clouds," adapted for radio by Charlotte Moore.

ITALIA DRAMA

"True But Not to Be Believed," an Italia Prize-winning drama by French author Claude Aveline, adapted by Mac Shoub, and produced at CBC Montreal by Rupert Caplan.

On his daily walk home from work, a man sees an antique shop which he had not noticed before. He enters the shop and is fascinated to see an antiquarian sitting motionless between two statues. When he returns to the shop late the same night he observes the same odd setting. The antiquarian then reveals a startling bit of information about the whereabouts of his late wife's body. Cast includes Alfred Gallagher as the antiquarian, Alan Miller, and Eileen Clifford. Leo Ciceri is narrator.

their teeth while fashion applauds the efforts of foreign artists. That's how it was in Henry Purcell's 30th year, 1688, and he made up his mind to grab the first opportunity to show what a British composer could do. Up until then he had written many things for the stage, but they were all separate numbers, composed to order. He had never had the chance to write a stage work from beginning to end, exactly the way he wanted it to be, sacrificing nothing for anyone else's whims.

Then he met up with Josiah Priest, a dancing master who asked him to write a work to be performed at his select Chelsea school for young gentlewomen. Purcell agreed, and composed Dido and Aeneas, a one-act opera in miniature and one of the supreme works of all music.

Dido and Aeneas will be presented on CBC Wednesday Night this week in a new realization by Benjamin Britten, who will also conduct. The performance was recorded by the BBC recently to celebrate the 300th anniversary of Purcell's birth. It features the Purcell Singers, the strings of the English Opera Group Orchestra and distinguished soloists. In leading roles are Claire Watson as Dido; Peter Pears as Aeneas; Jeanette Sinclair as Belinda; Patricia Clark as the second woman; Arda Mandikian as the Sorceress; Rosemary Phillips and Jean Allister as

Toronto writer and actor, begins a new series of readings of prose and verse by writers famous and obscure this Thursday on "Trans-Canada Matinee." The series is entitled "The Metre Reader."

TRANS-CANADA MATINEE

A Peep Into Antiquity. Ann Hardy is a domestic science teacher in England and has been broadcasting about food and its preparation for the CBC for 21 years. She possesses the highest award given by the Cordon Bleu in Paris and was the first foreigner to televise cooking in France. She is Secretary-Treasurer of the International Association of Women in Radio and Television and the author of two cook books. She visits Halifax occasionally to see her son-in-law; during her last visit there, she recorded this Matinee talk about an ancient cook book by Apicius, "The Art of Cookery."

The Metre Reader. A popular Matinee feature, "The Metre Reader," with noted Toronto actor Tommy Tweed returns to the program today. Listeners will recall Mr. Tweed's previous contribution in this series, his dramatic and good-humoured renditions of prose and verse by writers obscure and famous, and Matinee is happy to welcome him back.

Balancing the Budget. Montreal broadcaster Betty Shapiro visits yet another family with an annual income of under $4,000 and talks with its members about their family financing. This is the conclusion of Mrs. Shapiro's series on family budgets.

Daily features . . . News commentary by Joyce Irvine of Winnipeg, songs by Joan Emard of Ottawa, and another reading by Jane Hillary from Erika Leuchtag's "With a King in the

"Both Sides of the Fence." A documentary on how prisoners and citizens learn from each other in the Haney Correctional Institute outside Vancouver, B.C. The Haney Institute differs from a normal prison in several basic respects. The emphasis is on rehabilitation rather than punishment. The Institute has been integrated into the local community. Residents of Haney attend evening classes at the Institute and also take part in such activities as the drama group together with inmates of the Institute. There is a pre-release camp where inmates are allowed out during working hours to attend jobs in Haney and even Vancouver, returning to the camp each evening. Eileen Laurie will interview inmates, staff and members of the local community.

one of their research projects, the attempt to starve cancer cells. The staff of 12 different nationalities is studying the biochemical behavior of cancer cells to determine the differences between them and normal cells. With such knowledge scientists hope to find substances that can attack tumors without affecting normal cells. McBain and the camera crew will follow some of the experiments that are being conducted in the institute's laboratories.

Mickey Mouse Club

The Mickey Mouse Newsreel today includes a teen-age outboard motor race, a traditional African dance performed by native boys, and teenagers in a juvenile wild west rodeo. Viewers see another episode in the Spin and Marty series, and the show ends with a cartoon called "Birds in Spring," showing the return of birds after spending winter in the south.

Mr. Fix-It

Host Peter Whittall and Rex Loring show how to build a simply-constructed student's desk.

Dennis The Menace

Dennis acquires temporary ownership of a large neighbourhood dog whose friendly enthusiasm devastates Mr. Wilson's attempts to win a prize for oil painting at the annual art show. Jay North co-stars as Dennis with Herbert Anderson and Gloria Henry as his parents, and Joseph Kearns as their next door neighbour Mr. Wilson. Featured in the cast are Sylvia Field as Mrs. Wilson, and Billy Booth, Charles Watts, Doreen Lang, Irene Tedrow and Byron Foulger.

Movies With Manings

With host Alan Manings. "Lost Horizon," starring Ronald Coleman and Jane Wyatt.

N.H.L. Hockey

Detroit Red Wings vs. Montreal. Play-by-play and commentary by Danny Gallivan and Tom Foley.

W-10:30 pm K-9:30 pm X-9:30 pm

Jeremy Noble, English music critic, and Franklin D. Zimmerman, American musicologist and expert on Purcell.

Dido and Aeneas is Purcell's only real opera. His librettist was the poet laureate, Nahum Tate, from whom one might have expected something better than doggeral like: "I attempt from love's sickness to fly in vain, since I am myself my own fever and pain." But the music—some of the most poignant ever written—more than makes up for the uninspired words.

English theatre audiences of the late 17th century were not ready for a real opera, and so Purcell had to be satisfied with the Chelsea school's amateur production (with 11 dances thrown in to show off the result of Mr. Priest's course in dancing). But this does not imply that there is anything amateurish about the opera. Purcell makes brilliant use of dramatic rise and fall, skilfully extending or compressing phrases in a very modern way. Each character has a musical personality immediately recognizable, which makes the opera ideal for broadcasting. Costumes and scenery are quite unnecessary.

This is the story: Dido, Queen of Carthage, is in love with Aeneas, Prince of Troy. She fears that Fate is against their romance, but her kindly waiting-woman, Belinda, persuades her that all will be well, and the courtiers are atwitter at the prospect of a royal wedding. But they haven't reckoned with a wicked Sorceress and her attendant witches who are plotting the downfall of the lovers. These horrid creatures put their unkempt heads together, conjure up a thunderstorm, and tell Aeneas that the gods command him to return to Troy. He falls for their story, and ships are prepared for the long journey. Aeneas is about to set sail when Dido appears and accuses him of deserting her. Moved by her tears he says that he will risk disobeying the gods to stay with her. But she sends him away, and when he is gone she dies of a broken heart.

"Dido and Aeneas has done more than any other work to bring about the renaissance of English music in the 20th century," says Imogen Holst in a BBC publication. "The music has an astonishing way of sounding contemporary. This is partly owing to Purcell's genius for expressing the energy of English words. It is also owing to the extraordinary unexpectedness of his harmonies, and to the economy of his musical structure. Benjamin Britten has described the form which Purcell perfected as 'a continuous movement made up of independent short sections, mysteriously linked by subtle contrasts of key, mood and rhythm'."

The CBC Wednesday Night edition of Dido and Aeneas contains music for the missing end of Act II. The original autograph manuscript of 1688 or '89 was lost soon after Purcell's death. Only two copies exist, both written in the late 18th century, and neither contains the music for the last six lines of lyrics in the second act. To fill this gap, Britten borrowed other music by Purcell: a trio from The Indian Queen, a chorus from the Welcome Song of 1687, and a dance from Sir Anthony Love. Some important details in Britten's edition are taken from the later of the two 18th-century manuscripts which has been in a Tokyo library for over 40 years. The present owner of this manuscript, Mr. Kyuhei Oki, recently allowed it to be studied, and this performance is the first occasion on which this particular version of the music has been given.
